Calvin Bolt was a lifesaver for our new construction home project. After questioning our General Contractor about a few questionable areas in the home, he walked off the job. Not knowing what to do next or where or how to validate our concerns, we were fortunate enough to meet Mr. Calvin Bolt.

Mr. Bolt answered my inquiry e-mail within hours, was honest during all of our financial discussions, and despite the fact that our home inspection required much more work than he had estimated, he didn't change his price.

As our home required a more in depth inspection beyond the basic new construction process, Mr. Bolt always treated our house as if it were his own, knowing when and where we should call in additional experts for review and follow up. Our local building department had originally missed ALL the structural problems in the process of construction. It was Mr. Bolt who detected all of the defects and critical areas in need of immediate repair.

Mr. Bolt also extended a very special level of compassion, providing a level of personal support and help that far exceeds the expectation of any business relationship. Multiple times he provided advice, contacts, and additional suggestions at no additional charge. Mr. Bolt treated us just like a member of his own family and is a reminder that old-fashioned commitment, passion, and genuine value for service are still present with a very select few companies.

Without a doubt I recommend that you stop wondering if Mr. Bolt is worth your money, take my advice and don't put the value of your house or family on the line. Call in the expert and you'll never regret your decision. You wouldn't hesitate to buy insurance for your house, so don't second guess-Mr. Bolt is a better investment than any insurance policy you would consider.
